ATLANTIC PORTS GUARDED

List of Harbors Protected by Mines and Torpedoes.

Preparations for Invasion of Cuba—Casualties at Cienfuegos—Newspaper Man on Black List.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.

Special notices to mariners issued today by the United States Hydrographic Service and received at San Francisco and elsewhere show that the principal ports of the Atlantic are now protected by torpedoes and submarine mines. Warning is given that vessels that fail to obey the rules laid down for their guidance are likely to be blown up by the mines or fired upon by the shore batteries. The protected harbors are Portland, Maine; Portsmouth, N. H.; Boston, Mass.; Narragansett bay, R. I.; New York, Delaware river, Hampton Roads, Chesapeake bay and Patuxent river, Potomac river, Cape Fear river, N. C.; Charleston, S. C.; Savannah river, Pensacola bay, Mobile bay and Mississippi river.

The following rules apply to nearly all of the ports named: No vessel will be allowed to pass through the channel of entrance except between the hours of daylight, between 4 a. m. and 8 p. m. During the interval between 8 p. m. and 4 a. m. vessels must not approach within three miles of the batteries.

Patrol boats will be stationed above and below the defenses. These boats are authorized to stop vessels to inquire into their character or to instruct them how to pass through the mine fields. The orders of the patrol boats must be strictly obeyed.

Small sailing vessels can pass safely through any part of the channel during the daytime.

Steam vessels must pass at slow speed through the special channel which is marked by buoys.

No vessel will be allowed to anchor within three miles of batteries without special authority.

Vessels are warned that if they disregard these regulations they will expose themselves to serious damage and will be liable to be fired upon by the batteries.

Invasion of Cuba.

Tampa, Fla., May 19.—Every day the authorities are becoming more secretive. The necessity of concealing information from the newspapers is alleged on all sides, and newspaper disclosures are the alleged reasons of every mistake and failure made since the war began. It is now said that the greatly mismanaged Gussie expedition failed because of newspaper articles.

But notwithstanding all this secrecy, it can be seen that preparations are being hurried forward for some general movement, which can only be the invasion of Cuba. The President is said to be very impatient and to have intimated that he thought too much time had been already wasted and the invasion of Cuba should have begun long before this time.

The presence of the Spanish fleet is no longer a menace, as the American force is now of overwhelming strength, and the uncertainty regarding its movements cuts little figure. The only effect it can have will be to keep a number of the large American ships out of the attack on Havana, for they will be fully occupied watching for the Spanish fleet.

The transports conveying troops will be convoyed by small gunboats, it has been definitely determined, and the point selected as the place of landing will be shelled so as to drive out the Span-

The fact that clothes "cut a figure" in the career of a man. People unacquainted with you have no other way of judging your financial standing or responsibility. If you buy from the average hand-me-down tailor, nine chances out of ten you'll get a dressmaker's make. The well dressed man—all other things being equal—will make more money than the man who is carelessly dressed.
